PUSHING SEWER CONSTRUCTION

Good Progress Made on the Work of Tying Abbott and Marland Villages to the Complete Andover System.

Work on the Abbott and Marland Village sewers has been pushed with rapidity during the past few weeks, and the contractor hopes to have the work completed in about three weeks. The early summer weather, with rain falling every other day, made the work drag badly, and the contractors were handicapped to a large extent. For the past month, however, weather conditions have been perfect and the work has been pushed with remarkable rapidity.

The trunk line has been installed almost the entire distance from Phillips street through Abbott and Marland Villages to the junction of North Main and Stevens streets. There is a short piece on Red Spring road still to be done and the connection on Phillips street is to be made within the next two weeks.

Part of the pipe was laid across the Shawheen river at Abbott's bridge, on Sunday, and this work will be completed next Sunday. The cooperation of the officials at the Smith & Dove Mills in Abbott Village and the Bradlee Mills in Ballardvale was necessary in lowering the river to such an extent that the pipes could be laid beneath the bed. In Ballardvale, the water was held back, while at the Smith & Dove Mill extra pumps were started to draw the water down the

WITH SHAKESPEARE IN ANDOVER

Familiar Scenes and Events of His Time Presented to Andover People in the Brilliant Shakespeare Festival.

Could William Shakespeare come back to life again and walk into the town hall tonight, he would undoubtedly remark that "things haven't changed a bit since I went away." He would behold the same scenery to which he had been accustomed, the quaint dwelling-houses, the tap-houses, and the shops. He would also come face to face with the friends of his earthly life carrying on their usual or unusual occupations. His attire would conform to that of those about him, and without a question he would feel entirely at home in his surroundings. What would surprise him most would be to see the hosts of people mingling with his own friends and relatives, dressed in an entirely different style, a style which he undoubtedly would look upon with abhorrence. He would soon become acquainted with everybody and possibly a new inspiration would come to him; resulting in a new series of plays to be produced three hundred years hence to an audience just as enthusiastic as the one at the present time.

Of the dancing he might say, "What beautiful maidens and how finely they dance." He would listen to the music and applaud "Drink to Me only with Thine Eyes", and "Who Is Sylvia. What Is She?" He possibly would stop long enough between the program numbers to step into the tap-house for refreshment, or to buy an apron or something fancy for Mrs. Shakespeare, or perhaps candy, dolls or toys for the Shakespeare kiddies. He no doubt would spend his money freely for everything would appear so attractive to him. He would joke with the merry-andrews, the puppet-players, the ballad singers, gleemen, good-

ANTI-SUFFRAGE NOTES

The confidence with which Anti-suffragists throughout the country awaited the New Jersey election, proved to be more than justified by the event. The managers of the state campaign prophesied a margin of 25,000. They actually had twice that.

Once more, therefore, is illustrated the futility of trying to carry a double-suffrage amendment by a frontal attack. The measure has been put through Legislatures by methods with which we are only too familiar. There is always the chance that, as in California, a small minority may slip it in under cover of other measures. But never yet in any American State has woman's suffrage had a popular majority.

In the nature of things, it never will. When all is said, a majority of woman-kind is happily married; and a majority of men have had a first-hand experience of politics. In vain, therefore, do the feminists shriek "Slave," "Cow-woman"; and the politicians arrange platforms. The average woman trusts her husband to take care of her at the polls. The average voter will not subject his wife to the trying experiences which come to him.

So long as this country is run by average persons, anti-suffrage will always win on a full vote.

The correspondent who, in last week's Townsman, called attention to the recent report in "Social Hygiene" on the moral situation in San Francisco, had his point curiously illustrated by the account given within a day or two by a visitor to Andover from one of the "white" States, of the ingenious device adopted by the "powers that prey" in her own town.

She reports, in effect, that whenever the baser sort get nervous over a coming election, all they have to do is to get all the disreputable women in town to flaunt their clothes and their manners in the neighborhood of the caucus or polling-place.

Naturally, then, all but the most heroic of the better women keep out of the way. The "good" men alone are helpless against the "bad" men and the "bad" women combined—and the inevitable result follows.

The worst of it is that the scheme is one that will always work anywhere, any time, and there is no possible way to block it!

We who are on the other side cannot but regret the disappearance from Mr. Soehren's window of that large poster with the little fatherless children demanding votes for mother.

It was a good poster! If one might judge by the faces of the men who read it, they all went through the same mental process. First they thought, "Poor little devils. Must be awfully hard to bring up a young family without a husband."

Then, apparently, the same doubt struck them all: "But just what is it that the poor woman needs to be protected from? And just where have we voters of Massachusetts failed to do about all that is humanly possible for every sort of unfortunate? And where, on the whole, anywhere in the world, could the mother of those children do better by them than right here?"

No wonder the poster came down!

The suffragists are giving Col. Irish a great amount of free advertising, culminating in a meeting at Faneuil Hall on Wednesday to denounce in their own sweet way the gentleman from California. Meanwhile he goes on telling the truth as to conditions in California, paying little heed to the belligerent ladies, though he has spoken of one of their number as "Queen of Vulgaria."

At the Victory (?) parade in Boston last Saturday the Antis were busy too. An official statement says: "We have had our boys and young men sell our roses on the streets because we have always believed that women or girls should neither parade nor sell things on the streets, so, of course, we couldn't do that today. We have sold our roses in the hotel parlors and on the streets. We probably disposed of over 300,000 artificial roses, besides red-ribboned canes and other Anti novelties: 'Apart from that, all we have done is to voice a silent protest. We had an official counter count and tabulate the paraders, so we know what the accurate figures are, regardless of any fancy statements that may be given out from suffrage headquarters. We know there were 6658 women in the parade. It can be judged how representative of the women of Massachusetts these women in the parade were. For in Massachusetts there are 1,074,000 women of voting age; of this number it is estimated 600,000 would fill the franchise requirements required by law, if they were given the vote."

The Antis' count of Suffrage paraders was:
Total number of marchers, 8566 (this includes men, women, bandmen, children and boys).
Total number of women, 6658.
Total number of men, 792.
Total number of bandmen, 759 (40 bands).
Nine floats containing 32 people.
Fourteen autos containing 47 people.
Total number of children, 190.
Policemen in parade, 9.

Andover 1, Bunting 1

Andover United and Bunting met in the first round of the State Cup on the latter's grounds, Saturday afternoon, before the largest crowd that has witnessed a soccer game in Lowell in recent years. Andover was late in arriving, due to the driver of the auto truck going miles out of the way and it was four o'clock before the game started. The spectators were somewhat impatient at the long wait, but were rewarded for their waiting by a fast and exciting contest. The league champions took the field with only one of their regular forwards in his position. The result was that the burden of the offense fell on the halfbacks. This trio, Coleman, Henney and Black, also figured greatly in the defense, preventing the crack Bunting forwards from getting combined. The Lowell team was strengthened for the game by the inclusion of Rishton and Wallace of the Manchester Light Blues. Clegg was a notable absentee from the forward line. It was the powerful kicking of Rishton and A. Smith, and the speed and tackling of Captain Kelley at center half that saved the Lowell team. Especially was this seen after Bunting had equalized in the second half, for Andover fairly swarmed over the home team, but could not get a chance to shoot.

The game was remarkable throughout for the absence of shooting, neither goalkeeper getting much to do. Despite this fact, the contest never had a dull moment. The splendid work of the Andover halfbacks completely paralyzed the Bunting attack, while on the other hand, although the United forwards repeatedly closed in on the Bunting goal, it was only to see one or the other of the Buntings' powerful backs drive the ball past midfield. Andover scored in the first half from a penalty, Joe Black driving the ball with such terrific force that it went clear through the goal net. Bunting equalized in the second half through a missed kick of Higginbotham, Greenhalgh netting the ball. The game was called seven minutes before time, on account of darkness, and will be replayed at Lowell tomorrow.

The summary:
Andover—Kidd; Low and Higginbotham; Coleman, Renny and Black; Caldwell, Dougherty, Cairnie, Lynch and Jackson.

Bunting—J. Smith; Rishton and A. Smith; Lowe, Kelley and Gifford; Wallace, Taylor, Carnathan, Mitchell and Greenhalgh.

Score: Andover United 1, Bunting 1. Goals by Black (penalty) and Greenhalgh. Referee, John Wilkinson of Lawrence; linesmen, Gorrie and Pater-son. Time, two 45-minute halves, called by darkness seven minutes before time.

Consignment of Tow Water Logged

The Smith and Dove Manufacturing Co. have recently received a big consignment of tow which came through the war zone from Archangel, Russia. Off Halifax, the steamer caught fire, and the hatch was flooded; therefore, the four hundred bales became water-logged and now weigh just twice their normal weight. Every available field will be utilized for the drying of the tow which will be quite a proposition. The cricket field is a very convenient place, being owned by the company and adjoining the plant.

Oh! You Genial Harry!

Moonlight evenings are both tempting to both youth, the middle-aged and the gray, but the youngster seems to dote on them to a superlative degree. In keeping with the monthly advent of the silver sickle, Harry Morrison, the genial soul of the Model restaurant has become the possessor of a latest model Maxwell car. While Harry is not an expert driver, he is familiar with the art of piloting his car with one hand.—Taft (Cal.) Weekly "Drilling," 9.

McDOUGALL'S MUSINGS

A Round-About Paper

So the Townsman is to be in a new dress today. I hope that the new dress will fit her well and please "Miss Grundy". Time flies. "Our days are swifter than a weaver's shuttle." I mind of reading the first number of the Townsman and saw the little cellar and the little printing-press and the printer's devil at work. Today the tools for printing the paper, and the printers, are housed in a splendid building and I hope that the newspaper will be a success.

I trust that I will not be called egotistical if I state why "Ian McDougall" began to write for the Townsman. One of our lively policemen had laid hands on and arrested a rather lively arrival on the late car from Lawrence, and this rather lively policeman, who bothers automobile joy riders, was told by some clever writer in the Townsman that "Timothy" told us to lay hands suddenly on no man. Like many others, this clever writer did not know that Timothy never said such a thing, but that Paul, writing to Timothy, told him to be careful in selecting elders or bishops, and not to lay hands (i.e. consecrate) suddenly on church dignitaries, but to make a judicious choice. I sent a note to the Townsman Editor telling him about the "bull". He thanked me and asked if I could send half a column for the Townsman. I agreed to do so and have tried to do my best, and take this opportunity of thanking all the editorial staff as well as all the printer's devils for their kindness to me.

As I am speaking of Scripture quotations, or rather misquotations, I may mention the case of a lady who told me not long ago that they had a flourishing "Deborah" Society (she meant Dorcas), and I told her that they would need a good supply of big nails and hammers!

The late Dr. Richards, who, by the way, was a fine Greek scholar, often joked with me about the absurd way that Scotch people misquoted the Scriptures. He once mentioned the case of a boy who had abused a young calf and had pulled off its tail. The boy's father was telling his boy how wicked it was to do such a cruel thing and that it was against Scripture. The boy said that the Bible never mentioned anything about a calf's tail. His father replied by saying, "What God has joined together, let no man put asunder."

It is astonishing that with our Sunday Schools and Bible reading, so many people remain ignorant of the things spoken of in the Scriptures. It is simply the lack of paying attention. Even in common conversation many people are poor listeners. They will lift a newspaper or a book from the table, look out at the window, or look at their watch; they cannot be bothered with anything. The saying is that genius is the capacity for taking trouble.

How many of the graduates of our high schools can read blank verse, giving the sense? Just ask them to read Shakespeare's "Seven ages of man". First of all, they would not know where to find it, and would, nine times out of ten, read it abominably. I noticed that our new rector quoted the first three lines of the "Seven Ages" last Sunday. I do not pretend to any great ability, but it is just seventy years since I could repeat the passage, and today I can repeat every word correctly.

We went to the theatre in those days to see acting and hear good speaking. Today people go to be amused and cannot bear to be what they call bored by three hours of Shakespeare. I do not say that the old days were better; I only state facts.

Before I close this rambling musing, I would like to tell a little story that pleased me; an old man and a little child are easily pleased—"pleased with a rattle, tickled with a straw." Some time ago my musings were printed on the page beside the church notices. Kirks and clergymen were there on the "Dog's page." I mentioned this to a learned M. A. D. D., who called to see me. He said, "That's all right; no matter where they put McDougall, my wife and myself always read your musings first thing when we get the Townsman."

Robert Burns thus finishes "The Two Dogs", by many critics said to be his best poem: The dogs have finished their afternoon's talk about mankind and womankind, and go home thankful that they were not men, but dogs.

I have written a longer letter than usual to grace the new departure of the Andover paper, and will as long as I am able (in the course of nature that cannot be very long now) write my usual short letter for the dog with the big "tale".

river bed. The result was that the gang of men had little trouble in laying the pipe at the proper depth.

The cut from this point to Abbott Village center has been along the bank of the Shawheen river through the famous old Red Spring and the Red Spring field, to the Smith & Dove beach-house. From this point the highway is followed to Abbott Village center. Again the river bank is follow back of the Hillside to Marland Village.

The branch lines extend over Cuba, Mineral and Essex streets and Shawheen road. The work on these lines is well under way and before winter sets in it is expected that this will be entirely completed. The digging for the most part has been comparatively easy and the work has gone along smoothly. At some sections, however, ledges were encountered, especially on Cuba street and Shawheen road, and it was necessary to use considerable dynamite.

At Stimpson's bridge on the banks of the Shawheen river, where the connections have been made with the main line to the filter-beds, Contractor Philip L. Hardy has a gang of men at work erecting a building which will contain a new power pump. Work here is being rushed so that it will be completed in time for use when the pipe-lines are completed. Cuesdella & Co. of Milford are the contractors who are constructing the sewerage system.

OYSTERS

(From the Newark News)

Summer gone. Autumn's here
The fields now are brown and serene,
But there is balm to soothe my pain;
THE OYSTER'S back with us again.
I do not know just how the "R"
Comes in my blissfulness to mar,
But this I know, and this I say
I have not had a STEW since May,
Nor have I seen a single FRY
To gladden epicurean eye.

I have not had a chance to dwell,
In joy on oysters on the shell.
Summer brings me mingled joys;
Its pleasures on me sometimes cloy,
I love to swim and fish and boat;
'Tis fine in idleness to gloat.
The hot spell brings good things to eat
But none of them is joy complete;
THE OYSTER is all things in one,
A banquet, consomme to bun.
It's appetizer, meat, dessert;
Sometimes a pearl suit for my shirt.
The time of joy has come at last;
The "r" less months are in the past.
I care not for the autumn's chill
While I of OYSTERS eat my fill.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE NOTES

WHITE STATES, FULL SUFFRAGE
SHADED STATES, PARTIAL SUFFRAGE
UNSHADED STATES, PRESIDENTIAL SUFFRAGE
DARK STATES, MAN SUFFRAGE

If there was ever any doubt that the active opposition to Suffrage is essentially aristocratic, Boston on the day of the Parade effectually settled the question. The Back Bay, where many of the houses were still closed, was alive with the Anti-Suffrage colors: the black and white of half-mourning enlivened by a nondescript pinkish-red. Down town, among the throngs who lined the streets, the yellow largely predominated.

Lady Gregory, the charming Irish gentlewoman who spoke before the Barnstormers last winter, had this to say to a Traveler reporter the other day: "Until I read 'The Open Door' I was an Anti. Then I understood that one should not work against suffrage even if one did not wish it for one's self. As for the parade, it was a symphony, everything in tune. The parades I have seen centered about a person—royalty, perhaps—this centered about an idea."

Judge William H. Wadhams, of the Court of General Sessions of New York City, is well known to many in this town. During a recent visit to Andover he was asked how he, living in a city with such a large alien population, answered those who feared to give women the ballot because of the ignorant and immigrant vote. "I tell them that in all the cases which come before me, about 1 per cent of the criminals are women. In other words, in excluding women from the ballot, we are shutting out the more moral and law-abiding portion of the population."

He claims that man made his initial mistake when he allowed woman to learn the alphabet. Since then it has been increasingly hard to keep her in her "proper place."

The following statement by Judge Wadhams has appeared in many daily papers:

"Women are encouraged by the government to think. They are offered an education in our public schools equal to that given to men and more girls have graduated than boys."

"Women are permitted by the government to take part in the business life of the nation and state and are admitted to the learned professions. Women are in ever greater numbers sharing the burdens of business and professional life."

"Women are required by the government to meet the obligations of taxation, to obey the laws and suffer punishment for their violation in like manner as men."

"To study, to work, to contribute, to obey—these are obligations of citizenship—these have been imposed on women. As a matter of common justice those who are subject to the obligations are entitled to enjoy the privileges of citizenship."

Kilkenny Arguments

Most of the Anti-Suffrage arguments when set down side by side, destroy each other, like the famous Kilkenny cats. Thus the opponents of equal-rights insist that women do not want to vote, would not vote if they could, and do not vote when they can. In the same breath they utter a warning cry that there are more women than men in Massachusetts, and that the women will outvote the men. If even 6 per cent of the women neglect to vote, that will eliminate more than the whole 53,000 "surplus women" from the vote of Massachusetts; and these very same Antis have been trying to persuade us that in the Suffrage States only about 20 per cent of the women cast their ballots!

There is no state or country where the men and women have divided themselves into opposite camps and voted against each other. The woman's vote is always divided, conservative men and women voting together in one way, and progressive men and women in another. The division is never along sex lines.

A. S. B.

Requirements of a Man Voter.

What is required at present of a man before he can vote in the United States? He must be twenty-one years old.

He must be native-born or naturalized.

In some States he must be able to read.

That is all.

He is not asked whether he will use his vote.

He is not asked if all men want to vote.

He is not asked if he thinks the laws need changing.

He is not asked if he will promise to better the laws.

He is not asked to give statistics showing whether men have previously used their votes to better the laws.

He is not asked if he is sure he can still be a good father.

He is not asked to "remain attractive" after he votes.

But all such requirements and more are made of women when they aspire to vote. Is it fair to make such distinction?

McCall was hoped for at the big, Republican rally, but unfortunately the State is a big one and the long campaign is a very trying one, so Andover must be satisfied with having him here for a short time Saturday afternoon of this week. He ought to get a good big audience in front of the Town House, and he is bound to say some things well worth hearing, for he has known Andover's needs for many a year and has been a faithful servant in protecting them as the Massachusetts member of the Ways and Means Committee. Andover owes a lot to Mr. McCall for her general prosperity.

The rally for next week Thursday will introduce a new speaker to an Andover,

SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Case Against Local Painter Concern Adjusted Satisfactorily to Both Parties

A case of interest to residents of this town was tried Monday at a session of Superior Civil Court in the Lawrence Court house.

The first case that went on trial was that of John P. Downey, 277 Oak street, Lawrence vs. Charles E. Donovan of this town. The plaintiff died after the original papers were filed and his mother, Annie M. Downey, continued the suit. Action was of tort for $10,000 damages.

The plaintiff claims that on June 30, 1914, Mr. Downey received injuries from which he died, while working for Mr. Donovan, as a painter. The plaintiff alleges that Mr. Downey was mounting an extension ladder, while working at the house of John Alden in Andover, and that due to a defect in the ladder, he was violently thrown to the ground. His injuries included a broken back and, after lingering some months, he died Nov. 25 last.

Thomas Downey, a brother, was the first witness and told what he knew of the accident.

Attorney Henry F. Collins was the next witness and told the story of the accident as related to him by Mr. Downey.

Dr. H. W. Manahan testified that Mr. Downey was under his care while at the Lawrence General Hospital, and said that the injuries were such that he had no chance for recovery.

The defendant put two witnesses on the stand before the noon recess. Medical Examiner George W. Dow testified as to the condition of Mr. Downey when he examined him.

The defendant then brought into court as an exhibit the ladder from which Mr. Downey fell. It was a long extension ladder which reached nearly to the ceiling of the court room. Horace Hale Smith, civil engineer, took the stand and testified as to the strength of the ladder.

Frank J. Stanley testified that the kind of ladder used, as alleged by the plaintiff, was not commonly used by contracting painters, and was unsafe, in his opinion.

C. E. Warner, an Everett manufacturer of ladders, testified expertly upon the ladder which was introduced by the defendant and in the falling of which Mr. Downey met with the injuries that later resulted in his death.

L. D. Sherman, testified briefly about some photographs he had taken of the scene of the accident, and the defense introduced them as testimony.

Samuel Jacobs, a fellow worker, who was with Mr. Downey at the time of the accident, gave the details of the accident. He said that he helped Mr. Downey to put the ladder up to the staging, but that the latter took care of raising the extension and did not properly secure it. Witness said that he was at the bottom of the ladder bracing it while Downey went up to the staging, and that when he was near the top Downey called out excitedly, "My God, Sam, the ladder is slipping." Mr. Jacobs said that he told him to drop the paint pots he was carrying and that he did so. Witness said that the ladder slipped off the staging and fell against the house, where it stopped. He said that he called to Downey telling him not to jump, but that he had hardly got the words out of his mouth when Downey jumped and received his injuries.

Charles E. Donovan, the defendant in the suit, was the last witness before the afternoon adjournment. He was not present at the time of the accident but testified to various other details about the ladder and Mr. Downey's association with him.

Attorney J. P. S. Mahoney represented the plaintiff and Joseph L. Burns and Charles W. Bond the defendant.

Thomas T. Clark, a juror from this town was excused.

A conference between the attorneys for both sides was held soon after the opening of court on Tuesday and a settlement was reached and the case was withdrawn from court. The amount of settlement was not made known to the public.

Andover Historical Society

The annual meeting of the Andover Historical Society will be held in the vestry of the South church, Thursday evening, Oct. 28 at 7.45 o'clock for the election of officers and the transaction of any other business that may legally come before it.

A lecture illustrated by stereopticon views will be delivered by Mr. Lemmon, a former resident of Andover, in "The Wayside Inn", to which the public is cordially invited.

MEN'S CLUBS OPEN SEASON

"The Soldier's Shoe" by Major Cahill and "Undeveloped Assets" by Dr. Field, form Interesting Topics at Free and South Churches

"The Soldier's Shoe" was the subject of a very interesting and instructive lecture given by Major Charles T. Cahill before the Men's Club of the Free church last Friday evening, in the opening meeting of the season. It was Major Cahill's third appearance at the Free church and the members showed their appreciation by turning out in large numbers.

In opening, Major Cahill briefly sketched the history of shoemaking from the sandal of the cave man to the high-grade shoe of the present time. By the use of many slides he showed the various stages of footwear, beginning with the flat-sandal of the shepherds of Asia Minor and the pucker-string sandal or moccasin of the Sioux Indian; the papyrus sandal, the hemp shoe of the Spanish muleteers and the straw waraji of the Japanese. He also illustrated and explained many curious types of shoes, the poulaine of the days of Chaucer, the English poet; the Venetian chopine, the gorgeously-trimmed top boots of the cavaliers of the 17th century, and many other freak designs. An interesting picture was that of the side-laced shoe of the early part of the last century, a shoe which again came into style last year.

Major Cahill gave some interesting facts concerning the beginning of the division of labor in the shoe industry. He showed a picture of the first factory of Mr. Winslow, father of Samuel Winslow of the United Shoe Machinery Company, a small wooden building which now stands on the grounds of the company in Beverly, having been moved to its present location from Peabody. It was found by Mr. Winslow that greater production could be had by dividing the making of the shoe, and from this small start the great shoe industry sprang. He spoke of the pioneers in the machine-made shoe, McKay and Goodyear, and the inventors of the sewing machine, Howe and Singer, by whose inventive genius the machine-made shoe was possible. In contrast with the small wooden factory, he showed pictures of a modern shoe factory with its enormous daily production, one place in New York having a daily output of 52,000 pairs.

In his story of the Soldier's Shoe, Major Cahill said that less attention had been paid to the feet than any other part of the body. Style was, of course, more important than comfort, and in this country it was only within the last few years that a scientific study had been made of the subject. The Soldier's Shoe is now fitted, and the type of shoe issued to the United States Army was only perfected after a careful investigation by the Munson board. The service shoe adopted was, up to this year, the best in the world. He told of an experiment made in testing the shoes purchased by the soldiers themselves and those used by the government, in a 15-mile march. Of the former, 71 per cent were in trouble, while with the army shoe only 22 per cent had any difficulty, and less than 2 per cent of these were serious.

A great mistake is made in deciding upon a shoe and often the shoe chosen is too short. There should be ample room to spread the toes in a properly-fitting shoe. Major Cahill illustrated this by the use of several charts showing an X-ray of a soldier's foot in a well-fitted shoe. He also illustrated by charts an impression of a soldier's foot relaxed, bearing the weight of his body, and bearing the weight of his pack, forty pounds. There was a difference of nearly an inch in the length of the foot between the first and third test, showing the absolute necessity of having properly-fitted shoes to ensure comfort in marching or walking.

Major Cahill then illustrated and described the shoes worn by the soldiers of the belligerent nations of Europe. He said that after the shoe scandal of the Canadians last year, the Canadian government had issued a shoe, patterned after our army shoe, but with improvements, which, he believed, was the most serviceable shoe yet made. He showed the heavy hob-nailed shoe of the British soldier, weighing three pounds, four ounces per pair, the still heavier shoe of the French infantry, the great boot of the Germans, and also the shoes worn by the Austrians, Servians, Italians, Portuguese, Spanish, and Swedes. He was certain that some of the types worn by the Germans and Italians must cause terrible suffering to the wearers. He spoke of the efforts made to ease the feet of the wearers and the vain attempts of the German Emperor to use grease to prevent chafing. Major Cahill explained that such attempts were useless, as the grease clogged the pores of the feet and more poison was exuded through the feet than any other part of the body.

The importance of well-shod soldiers was recognized by the great Wellington, who said that the first thing of importance was a pair of good shoes, and second another pair. Napoleon also was awake to this fact and offered inducements for machinery which would produce a serviceable shoe in large quantities, but without success. In present-day warfare the importance of the soldier's shoe is vital, and a soldier with good shoes is of greater value many times in the trenches than the soldier with the rifle. Major Cahill said that during the Franco-Prussian war 70 per cent of the soldiers were at one time incapacitated because of the suffering caused by poor shoes. Today there are orders in this country for 7,000,000 pairs of shoes for the armies of Europe, and these are all being constructed on the pattern, with slight modifications, issued by the Munson board for the United States army.

In concluding his address Major Cahill gave a very instructive account of the making of the shoe, by the different methods of pegged shoes, nailed, screwed, McKay and Goodyear welt, the last the nearest approach to the old hand-sewed shoes. He also pictured the plant of the United Shoe Machinery Company of Beverly where the shoe machinery is made, showing the buildings and interior, the sanitary arrangements and hospital room, and the magnificent clubhouse and athletic grounds for the employees. The lecture was one of the most enjoyable ever given before the club.

At the next meeting Hon. John W. Weeks, junior United States Senator from Massachusetts, will be the speaker.

South Church Men's Club

In the South church vestry on Friday evening, the Men's club held its first regular meeting. Dr. George W. Field, chairman of the Massachusetts Fish and Game Commission, gave an interesting talk on "Some Undeveloped Assets of the Commonwealth." His lecture was illustrated by numerous stereopticon views. Dr. Field has made several investigations for the state, concerning the conservation and development of fisheries and game. Musical selections and refreshments at the close added to the enjoyment of the evening. The club has a large membership of over 150.

The officers are: President, Albert N. Alexander, first vice-president, Myron E. Guttererson; second vice-president, Eugene M. Weeks; secretary, Homer N. Sweet; treasurer, Joseph Cushing; executive committee, Frederic G. Moore, John V. Holt, James F. Allison.

Birthday Celebration

Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Foster of Summer street both came to a new birthday anniversary on Sunday, the 17th. So the friends of Mrs. Foster in some haste planned a tea for some of her friends at the house of Mrs. Melledge. The gathering included those upon whom she has from time to time sprung surprises of a like nature. It was also representative, because of necessity limited to a few of the many friends she has won—members of the Grange, of the Mothers' Club, the Historical Society and Natural History Society, the South Church King's Daughters, Summer Street friends, etc. Three birthday cakes were presented, with some choice lace frivolities dear to the feminine heart, and best of all a Whittier Birthday Book in which the party inscribed their names.

Mr. Bigelow bravely represented his class and sex and read a tender poem after nearly all but a small group had gone—"The Wayfarers", by the late James R. Murray, who was a personal friend of Mrs. Foster's family in the Vale. Mrs. S. H. Bailey entertained us with a parody on "Annie Laurie", substituting the Shawshin for Maxwellton and Foster for Laurie, which fitted finely. The spread, of course, took so much attention we could not get the reading in the right place before.

As a reporter I must agree with one of the "Sons of Veterans" who was invited to this first elders' party in the Grand Army hall, mostly women, many old enough to be his mother. He came home and told us he did not know there were so many handsome women in Andover. I can recall but one spinster besides myself. We did have a good time, for Mrs. Melledge was the hostess which explains the whole effect upon yours gratefully.

Obituary

MRS. JONAS SPAULDING
The many local friends of Mrs. Emma Spaulding, mother of Governor Rolland H. Spaulding of New Hampshire, were grieved to learn of her death on Tuesday, at the Hotel Brunswick in Boston. She had been ill for almost a year.

Mrs. Spaulding made many friends in Andover while residing here in the house now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Bernard M. Allen on Bartlett street. Since the death of her husband, she has made her home with her daughter at the Hotel Brunswick.

Mrs. Spaulding was born at Mason, N. H., and attended school at Westfield, Mass. At the age of seventeen she taught schools in Groton, Ayer, and Townsend. For a number of years she was chairman of the school board at Townsend, where she married Jonas H. S. Spaulding, fifty years ago.

Mrs. Spaulding was greatly interested in charitable work and spent much of her life in helping the poor. The beautiful Methodist church at North Rochester was built through her efforts.

She leaves three sons—Leon Cummings Spaulding of Towanda, N. Y., Huntley Norman Spaulding of Brookline, Governor Rolland H. Spaulding of North Rochester, N. H.; and one daughter, Marion Louise Spaulding of Boston. The funeral and burial was yesterday afternoon at Townsend.

Births

On Thursday, October 14, a son to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schlegel of 70 North Main street.
On Saturday, October 16, a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. John S. Buchan of 1 Lincoln street.
On Sunday, October 17, a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hodgkins of Ballardvale.
On Wednesday, October 20, a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thiras of 354 North Main street.

PICTURE EXHIBITION

Splendid Collection of Works of Art
Attracts Large Crowds to Stowe School. Entertainment Given by the pupils

An interesting exhibit of pictures was shown on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at the Stowe school. The exhibition consisted of 200 large reproductions of the masterpieces of architecture, sculpture and painting, from the Elson Educational Art exhibit. More pictures are desired for the school-rooms and corridors, therefore the proceeds will be used to add to this part of the school equipment.

A fine entertainment was given by the children on each evening. The program for Tuesday evening was as follows:

Song—The Spinning Maiden	Jessie Smith
"H"	Sixth Grade
Composition Winners	Sixth Grade Girls
Hawthorn's Childhood	Dorothy Ryler
Love of Country	Sixth Grade Girls
Folk Dance	Seventh Grade
Composition Winners
Song—Where Would I Be	Ether Soper
Life's Mirror	Isabel Hatch
To a Fringed Gentian
Song—Bird of the Azure Wing

Composition Winners
Landing of the Pilgrims
Song—The Midshipmite

The program for the second evening was changed somewhat, the following taking the places of the speakers of the previous evening:

The Antiseptic Baby and the Prophylactic Pup	Minerva Randall
The Owl and the Pussy Cat	Allan Buttrick
Lines to a Waterfowl	Mary Barrett
October's Bright Blue Weather	Randolph Perry
The Day Is Done	Alma Brewer

Written composition contests which have been conducted in various grades of the Stowe School resulted in a series of very fine papers. These were read by the authors, except in a few cases where, owing to the absence of the author, the essays were read by Mr. Moss. One prize and honorable mention was awarded in each room. The prize-winners were: Sixth Grades, Dorothy Stevens, Henry Otis; Seventh Grades, Marion Ladd, Orville Holt; Eighth Grade, Helen Donovan; Ninth Grade, Adelaide Dodge.

Honorable mention was given in the Sixth Grades to Ruth Dunnells and Mary Connor; Seventh Grades, Anna McCoubrie, Honora Cronin; Eighth Grade, Rita Crosby; Ninth, Beatrice Goff.

Natural History Society's Reservation Now Under Protection of the State

Our Andover Wild Life Sanctuary seems to be justifying both the reasons of its foundation. Local naturalists who have kept tabs during the summer report that various small insect-eating birds, especially bluebirds, have nested in the boxes, that have been put up for them, and that the wild life is increasing.

The second object of the Reservation is to provide a propagating ground in which various game birds, secure from molestation, may breed freely, and thence overflow into the surrounding country. By this means, it is hoped to increase considerably the number of game birds in the entire region. The plans of the State officials look to the establishment of such breeding grounds every 10 or 15 miles over the entire State, to keep up the supply of game in the country between. Recently a covey of nineteen quail which were provided by the State were liberated in the local reservation. If these survive, other birds will be added.

It need hardly be pointed out that this project for stocking the entire region with game birds cannot be carried through unless all citizens unite in protecting the source of supply. For this reason, the State officials have sent a special game warden from Boston who with two assistants, has been patrolling the district, by way of discouraging any game hog who may attempt to gobble for himself the property of the community. Fortunately, the sportsmen have themselves been the first to see what is for their own interest.

The project for a Wild Life Reservation in Andover under the State Law of 1911 originated with Rev. Mr. Lombard, and has been carried out by the Andover Natural History Society, under the presidency of Mr. Omar P. Chase in co-operation with the Andover Canoe Club and the Village Improvement Society. Last winter the carpentry classes, in the public schools made upwards of fifty nesting boxes, which were placed in trees ready for the birds when they arrived. In addition, various owners of the land have assisted. Besides this, the wild creatures in the area, especially the large game birds, were fed regular-

BALLARDVALE

Mrs. John Galvin of Wakefield spent Tuesday in the village.

Miss Kate West spent Thursday with her sister, Mrs. Sarah Shattuck, in Salem, N. H.

Mrs. Thomas is having a number of changes and additions made to her bungalow on the Shawshen.

Mrs. Lizzie S. Barnes and Daniel H. Poor spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Everett A. Marsh in Dedham.

The Independent Drum Corps will furnish music at the rally in the Andover town hall next Monday evening.

Mr. Kelson is pushing the work on his new canoe house. He intends to make it the headquarters for canoeists on the Shawshen.

Miss Winifred Donovan and Miss Sarah Daley represented the Stenographers' Union at the Suffrage Parade in Boston last Saturday.

The local Good Templars are getting a number of articles ready to send to the rummage sale to be held in Boston the last of the month for the benefit of the Grand Lodge.

Mrs. R. E. Horne attended the funeral of her father in Claremont, N. H., this week, who died quite suddenly, at the age of seventy-five years, while visiting relatives in Lemster, N. H.

Rev. F. A. MacDonald of Lowell gave an exceptionally able and stirring address at the union meeting held in the Methodist church last Sunday evening. There was a large attendance present.

Twelve members from the local church attended the meeting of the Andover Association held in Lawrence on Tuesday afternoon and evening. All report an exceptionally enjoyable and instructive program.

Ballardvale lodge voted to attend in a body the Prohibition rally in the town hall, Andover, next Monday night, October 25. William Shaw, the candidate for governor, will be the speaker of the evening. On account of the rally being on Monday evening, the lodge will hold their meeting next week on Friday evening, October 29.

(Other Ballardvale news on Page 8)

ly through the winter. As a result all kinds of desirable game, partridges in particular, have been uncommonly numerous in the game sanctuary this fall.

It is proposed to continue all these lines of effort during the coming year. All citizens who are interested in wild life are especially urged to feed the birds during the winter, both by putting out crumbs, nuts and seeds; and by planting food shrubs about their grounds. It is also important that nesting boxes should be provided throughout the town. Details on all these matters may be had from Mr. Chase or other members of the Natural History Society.

But the great enemy of the small wild life is the superfluous and quite unnecessary cat. Messrs. Lombard, Chase, Homer Foster, W. Harnden Foster and Chester D. Abbott have special authority from the State to suppress these and other enemies of useful birds.

Since the gunning season opened October 12th, the state game wardens under the efficient guidance of Walter A. Larkin have been kept busy suppressing gunners from trespassing upon the limits of the reservation and several violators of the law have been brought to the bar of justice and fines varying from $10 to $70 have been imposed. The following section of the Game Laws should be read carefully by those who plan to go hunting:—

CHAPTER 92 OF THE REVISED LAWS

Section 14. Whoever, for the purpose of shooting or trapping, enters upon land without the permission of the owner thereof, after such owner has conspicuously posted thereon notice that shooting or trapping thereon is prohibited, shall be punished by a fine of not more than twenty dollars.

Per order of THE OWNER.

WEST PARISH

Mrs. Bessie May Skiels is visiting at George Morgan's on Chandler road.

Charles Newton, Jr., and family have moved into their new bungalow on Boutwell road.

Mrs. Downing is quite ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank K. Hardy, Shawshen road.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Buchan are rejoicing over the birth of a ten-pound daughter, born October 16.

The service of worship will be omitted next Sunday as the pastor will attend the National Council at New Haven and remain over Sunday.

Remember to set aside the nights of November 11 and 12 for the Grange Fair. Entertainment the first night and music the second. Turkey supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Gayton Abbott of Somerville spent part of the week with the former's mother, Mrs. Edward F. Abbott of the Center.

Miss Helen Ward of Lynn and Miss Alice Oakes of Beverly have returned to their homes after spending a few days with Miss Mary Ward of Chandler road.

Mrs. James Marshall is visiting her mother, Mrs. George Ward of Lowell street. Mrs. Ward has just returned from the Homeopathic Hospital, Boston.

Pearl and Fred McCollum entertained a party of friends at their home on Lincoln street this week. Those present were Ruth Abbott, Dorothy Cutler, Miss Bohn of Boston, Kenneth Hardy and Edwin Matthews.

The delegates from the West church to the fall meeting of the Andover Association, held in Lawrence on Tuesday of this week, were the pastor, Rev. Newman Matthews, the Superintendent of Sunday School, Mrs. Charles Hardy, Miss Angie Burt, Mrs. E. W. Boutwell, Dea. and Mrs. Trow.

The writer had the rare privilege of spending an hour last Sunday with one of the oldest ladies of West Andover, Mrs. Warren Bailey. Mrs. Bailey will be eighty-seven years old her next birthday and is living in the house where her late husband was born and where he brought her fifty-one years ago. Erect as any young girl, Mrs. Bailey is keenly interested in the affairs of the town and in a very interesting manner will carry one back seventy years.

There will be an entertainment in the Bailey schoolhouse Friday night, October 29. It will be under the direction of Mrs. Winthrop Boutwell, and the object is to raise money for the grab-bag at the church fair. Mrs. Boutwell has charge of the grab-bag. The entertainment will consist of a solo by Henry Hardy of Lowell, two readings by Winthrop Boutwell, one given in Irish dialect, a drill by ten girls of Mrs. Morrill's school, musical selections by Charles Newton and Miss Bertha Pike. Candy and ice cream will be for sale. Admission, 10 cents.

Grange News

On October 20, the Andover and West Newbury Granges entertained West Boxford Grange in the latter's hall. There were forty-two from Andover Grange present, and the entertainment consisted of a solo by Mrs. Archie Mayo, a drama entitled "Parted by Patience," given by Mrs. Hubert Mayo, Mrs. Philip Moor, Miss Gladys Hill, Kenneth Hilton, and Archie Mayo. There were forty present from West Newbury Grange, and their members furnished a drama for the entertainment. There were also thirteen members present from North Andover Grange.

Tuesday night, October 26, will be observed as visitors' night, the entertainment to be furnished by North Andover Grange. Supper will be in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Hardy, Mr. and Mrs. James R. McGovern, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Kline, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kress.

Telephone By-Ways

Hundreds of small villages, away from main-travelled roads, are readily accessible to salesmen who know how inexpensive and how easy it is to telephone these places from convenient junction points.

Sometimes it is impossible to "make" all these places each trip, or personally to visit each customer oftener than once a year.

A telephone call is the best known substitute for a personal visit. It keeps one's personality alive. It gratifies the customer. And frequently it pays for itself a hundred-fold by the casual re-orders it induces.

There will be no toll charge on a Particular Party Call if you are not connected with the person whose name you have given to the Toll Operator.

Harvest Supper

The Indian Ridge Rebekah lodge served an excellent supper in Pilgrim hall, Monday evening from 6.30 to 7.30.

Baked beans, cold tongue, boiled ham, cabbage salad, potato salad, rolls, pies, coffee, etc., made up the menu. Those who attended to the wants of the guests were Mrs. Charles Morse, Mrs. J. Haughton Flint, Mrs. William Faulkner, Miss Ethel Hilton, Mrs. Walter S. Rhodes and Mrs. Thomas E. Rhodes. The committee for the affair were: Miss Charlotte Hill, Chairman; Mrs. Carrie S. Buchan, Mrs. George W. Mears, Miss Rebecca McCollum, Mrs. William Faulkner, Mrs. Frank Cole, Mrs. William L. Frye and Frank Holt. The regular meeting of the lodge was held at the close of the supper.

A short but interesting entertainment added to the enjoyment. The District Deputy President was present and gave several reading selections. Songs were sung by the District Deputy Marshal. Mrs. Frank Cole played the piano accompaniment.

Glenwood

Glenwoods are always Brim Full of New Wrinkles

The Glenwood Balanced Baking Damper is far ahead of any other—it is as positive as the turning of a railroad switch—open to start the fire, closed to bake—just this one damper for kindling or baking and best all, it can't warp or stick.

The Glenwood Revolving Coal Grate is easy to shake at all times, and simply fine for removing clinkers. It is triangular in shape, with three different sides for wear.

The Glenwood Sectional Top is interchangeable—cross pieces can not warp—a wash boiler can be placed at the back as well as in front for quick heating, leaving the front holes free for cooking.

The Glenwood Shelf Under Oven Door is not stationary—it automatically raises and lowers as oven door is opened or closed. It is always level with oven bottom—a great convenience when basting meats or removing food.

The Ash Pan rests on a roller bearing frame—just open door and it rolls out at the slightest touch, neat and clean.

Glenwood Iron is smooth and perfect—the easiest of any to clean—a real delight to the most exacting housekeeper.

BOSTON THEATRES

TREMONT TEMPLE

The Chicago Tribune's war pictures made on German battlefields by a special permission of the highest officials will be shown at the Tremont Temple for a limited engagement beginning Monday, Oct. 18.

The pictures are in six reels and are described by the newspapers of New York City, where they are now being shown, as the most remarkable battle pictures ever exhibited.

Edwin F. Weigle, the intrepid staff photographer of the Chicago Tribune accompanied the German troops to Poland and Galicia on the East, and to the French battle line on the West, and while on the South he scaled with the German and Austrian troops the dizzy Alpine heights in order to perpetuate the historical events. Over and over again he risked his life to get a closer view of the wonderful scenes that lay before him, while with the aid of a telephone lens fitted to his camera he was enabled to bring into vision other scenes being enacted miles away and physically inaccessible to him. In that way, for instance, he was able to show, first the discharge of one of the tremendous siege guns, and immediately after to get an intimate picture of the fearful destruction wrought by the shell miles away. Nothing like this has ever been seen here and it is easy to understand 12,000 people have crowded daily for weeks into one theatre in New York drawn by the fame of this exhibition. During the engagement all seats will be 25 cents.

PLYMOUTH

There has been no play in years that has made such searching appeal as "Back Home", now playing at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston. Critics and public alike have gone to the extreme in praise of it, and there exists in their minds no doubt that it will enjoy a long and prosperous run here in Boston. It has everything a play should have to merit this, plentiful humor of the honest sort, most wholesome sentiment, and stirring and heart compelling scenes. The cast, too, has come in for great praise, and Selwyn & Co., who made the production, chose most wisely for the characters. John W. Cope is the Judge Priest, and Willis P. Sweetman plays Jeff, the Judge's servant.

The matinees at this theatre are given on Thursdays and Saturdays. Out-of-town patrons are assured that all mail orders will receive careful attention.

PARK SQUARE

"Twin Beds" enter upon its third month at the Park Square Theatre, Boston, with the unqualified endorsement of the thousands who have already viewed it with abounded pleasure. Three couples live uncomfortably near to each other, in the crowded con-finer of a fashionable apartment house. They are brought together by the sociability of one of their number, a delectable bride whose husband wants nothing so much as "peace and quiet in the home." Once they are throttled in this unwelcome neighborliness, they all make frantic efforts to escape it—each effort entangling them the more, till a final catastrophic situation saves the day and sends the audience home still rocking with its mirth.

The regular matinees are given on Wednesdays and Saturdays. All mail orders are promptly and carefully attended to.

HOLLIS STREET

"Nobody Home", the reigning musical comedy success which opened the present Boston season will enter upon the last week of its engagement at the Hollis Street Theatre next Monday evening.

The cast, headed by that inimitable English comedian, Lawrence Grossmith, Adele Rowland, Charles Judels, Nigel Barrie, Maude Odell, Tom Graves, Mignon McGibney, George Lydecker, Carl Lyle and others, has never been equaled.

There will be the regular matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

WILBUR

One of the most important events of the season will be the production of Bernard Shaw's latest invention, "Androcles and the Lion," which Lillah McCarthy, Granville Barker and Percy Burton will present at the Wilbur Theatre for three weeks beginning next Monday, October 25th.

"Androcles and the Lion" has as a basis for its plot the story of Aesop's fable who drew a thorn from the lion's paw and was later rewarded when the lion recognized him in the arena where the fable had been thrown as a Christian martyr to the lion's jaws.

Preceding the performance of Shaw's fable play, Anatole France's short comedy, "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife," will be acted. This piece tells the delightful story of a professor who married a lovely wife, only to find her dumb. So distraught was he that he ordered the surgeons to make her speak. The order was obeyed, but alas, the young lady chattered so unmercifully that the poor professor sent with maddest haste to have her made dumb again. But while she could be made to speak, not all the arts of surgery could still her tongue. How the professor secured relief from her constant prattling is one of the most delightful denouements in modern comedy.

MAJESTIC

Beginning next Monday, October 25th "The Birth of a Nation" will positively be seen for its last week there. It is with a feeling of gratitude to its patrons, as well as pride of achievement, that the management terminates this memorable run in Boston. Three hundred and sixty performances! Equal to 45 weeks, or nearly eleven months of a regular, eight-performances-a-week theatrical attraction, "The Birth of a Nation" has hung up a record which seems destined to challenge approach for a long time.

SHUBERT

It is an adroit association of famous stars that Joseph Brooks has combined for the revival of "Triby" at the Shubert the two weeks commencing next Monday, October 25.

"Triby" is the ideal love story of all ages, aglow with romance, resounding with melody and throbbing with the intensity of its hypnotic theme. After two decades it is as vivid and vital as when Paul M. Potter dramatized it and not the change of a line is found necessary after two decades. There is enormous interest in this revival and unusual efforts are made by the Shubert management to guard the public against any speculative extortion.

OPERA HOUSE

Announcement has just been made that after eight weeks of tremendous success at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, and just when it seemed that the play must leave Boston, the great morality play "Experience" will be transferred intact to the Boston Opera House, on Huntington Avenue, for three far-week weeks. Owing to the high prices usually charged for the grand opera, there are many theatre-goers who have never been able to afford a visit to this famous Opera House, built by Eben Jordan of Boston at a cost of nearly two millions; and yet now at the same prices which prevailed at the Shubert—$1.50 for the best seats and with others at 50c., 75c. and $1—patrons may be able to see not only the architectural wonders of this famous edifice, but also to see the most wonderful play in America, "Experience."

There will be the usual Wednesday bargain matinees, when the prices will range from only 25c. to $1.

An innovation for the management will be the inauguration of a press room for the convenience of visiting newspaper men from New England, and from the Boston newspapers, when tea and cakes will be served on matinee days at 3 o'clock, and every night at 9 o'clock, to which newspaper men and their friends will be welcome guests at all times.

Big Production Record

The chain of Maxwell plants in Detroit, Newcastle, Ind., and Dayton, O. is being pushed to the limit in order to break in September the month's production record established in August, during which all Maxwell marks were beaten by the shipment of more than 5,100 of the 1916 models.

Maxwell Wins Climax

Driven by Charles Bouril, of Manitowoc, Wis., a 1916 Maxwell touring car won the Maribel Caves hill climb from a large field, being the only one of the contestants to beat seven minutes in the ascent of the steep, long grade.

STATE AND NATION

NEW ARMY FOR DEFENSE

Having studied the military program proposed by Secretary of War Garrison and approved by President Wilson, Washington is speculating on the chances of the program going through congress and of its reception by the American people as a whole.

A continental army of 1,000,000 men, half for first line defense and half for reserve in the next six years, together with the navy's program of ten dreadnoughts and six battle cruisers within five years, representing a defense budget of $400,000,000, or an increase of about $140,000,000 a year, is what the new military defense policy of the administration means.

Yet those who understand the needs of the country in the matter of defense are sure that both congress and the American people as a whole will approve of the program and give the administration every support in carrying it out.

A study of the program leads to the belief that the most important difference between the system which Garrison purposes to establish and the present military system in Europe is that service in the American continental army will not be by compulsion. The new American army will be composed of men who come forward of their own accord to volunteer their services to the state. Citizens of the state will give service to the state instead of subjects of the state yielding to compulsion.

As the war department looks at the market of available men for the army there are three classes to be attracted, as follows:

The man who wants to adopt soldiering as a profession can do so, for a long or a short period, in the standing army. From this force the army will develop its most highly trained units and the very valuable material for non-commissioned officers.

Then there are the young men who have not assumed responsibilities which take up all their time; the men in the universities and colleges who can easily devote two months each summer for a period of three years to intensive military training in the field.

The third class is the business man who can spare the time for training that is given in the national guard or in camps such as established at Plattsburg.

Thus in the scheme proposed by Garrison it is considered that an attractive means for giving the country military service has been afforded all three of the classes of men, and a means which will not interfere in any way with the normal civilian pursuits of the men.

The success of the idea, officials admit, depends not on the appropriations of congress, for its cost will be comparatively small, but on the patriotic response of employers, to whom an appeal will be made to furnish as many men each year, at different seasons, as they can spare who wish to join the proposed continental army.

VICTIMS OF BANDITS

Two Americans Killed For Resisting Mexican Train Robbers

Two Americans were killed and four wounded when Mexican bandits wrecked a passenger train on the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico railway and then robbed the passengers, shooting down those who resisted.

Ten Mexicans paid with their lives for alleged complicity in the train robbery and killing. Peace officers said they had clues to other Mexicans connected with the robbers. No secret was made that more would be killed if civilian possees catch them.

Retired Army Officer a Suicide

SHAKESPEARE IN ANDOVER

wives, minstrels, gallants and ladies from an imaginary court, flower and orange girls, and even an occasional outlaw would be met with in obscure and out-of-the-way places, ready to prey upon the purses of the visitor and his friends. He would see the balcony arranged precisely as it was when Romeo climbed to his Juliet, the taproom where the "brown October ale" (ginger) is served by barmaids in proper attire, and where he could sit down to a fine feast of cakes, pasties and puddings. His menu can be changed each evening, should he desire to go more than once.

It will be hard to convince Mr. Shakespeare that the scene of all this transformation is in the Andover town hall in the year of 1915. The work done by the unusually competent designers and the untiring efforts of the committees in charge, has made this pageant one of the most elaborate and attractive events ever presented in the town hall. To our fellow townsmen, H. Winthrop Peirce and Addison B. LeBoutillier, no small amount of praise is due for the work performed in the designs and arrangement of the setting. The former enjoys a national reputation for work of this nature, and Christ church is especially favored in having Mr. Peirce devote his efforts and considerable time to the preparation of this event. Mr. LeBoutillier's work as a designer and artist has been seen before, in the plays given by the Barnstormers, but this time he has surpassed his previous efforts with results that must be seen to be appreciated.

The stage has been transformed into a beautiful room, hung with tapestries, an exquisite piece of work executed by Mrs. Charles W. Henry and Mrs. Bartlett H. Hayes. The large design hung at the back of the stage is especially attractive, two large peacocks in their gay and gaudy colors being the most striking features of the work.

The tables which were patronized last night by an enthusiastic and appreciative public, looked very pretty in their colors and quaint designs. Each booth was arranged differently and all were lighted by colored bulbs in horn lamps of the 16th century architecture. Around the walls were hung evergreen boughs and the corners near the stage were transformed into high stone walls, the stones being made with brush and paint by Mr. Brewster, Mr. LeBoutillier and Mr. Brooks. Each table had an inscription over it, suggested by the name of one of Shakespeare's comedies. The tables and titles were as follows: Fancy, "Twelfth Night, or What You Will"; flower, "Midsummer Night's Dream"; domestic, "Merry Wives of Windsor"; preserves, "All's Well that Ends Well"; doll and toy, "As You Like It"; basket, "Measure for Measure"; popcorn, "The Tempest"; grab, "The Merchant of Venice".

The entertainment last night consisted of seven numbers, including solos, glee singing and dancing. The first number, two selections from Shakespeare's "The Tempest" and "As You Like It", were tendered by gleemen from Christ church choir. The morris dance coming next was a clever bit of work executed by six small boys.

The minuet which followed was performed by eight young people. Their movements were exceptionally graceful and their striking costumes added the proper tone to such a dance.

Miss Ernestine Pittman sang one of the 17th century folk songs, "Oh, the Oak and the Ash", in a very delightful manner. Her clear tones and distinct pronunciation made her song all the more enjoyable to the audience.

The folk dances by the Village Dancers was one of the delightful numbers on the program. The little folks went through the movements thoughtfully and deliberately and responded to an encore.

Edward Hill, who sang "Take, O Take Those Lips Away", was applauded for his effort and was recalled to the stage.

The Tutored Bear, the last number on the program, was one of the funniest bits of acting seen on the town hall stage for some time. Perley F. Gilbert as the Bear certainly deserves honorable mention for his imitation of the tame but unruly bear. John Urson, Bearward, H. Winthrop Peirce, was a busy trainer, his attention being constantly occupied with his charge which at times gave him much trouble.

The Glee Maiden, Miss Belle Keeler, danced very prettily in an appropriate costume.

Miss Florice Evans, a young violinist, played for all the dance numbers, and the singing was under the direction of B. Frank Michelsen.

General dancing followed the entertainment, music being furnished by the Adelphi orchestra.

The general committee in charge of the festival has been very fortunate in securing so many able assistants, who have worked diligently for the success of the affair. Those in charge of the tables were:

Fancy Table—Mrs. Walker, Mrs. Thomson, Mrs. Forbes, Mrs. Buck, Mrs. Bartlett, Mrs. Laurie, Mrs. Hight, Mrs. Brooks, Miss Locke, Mrs. Jealous, Miss Howey, Mrs. Sturgis, Mrs. Cutler, Mrs. Tyer, Mrs. E. V. French, Mrs. J. Flint.

Preserves—Mrs. Dove, Mrs. MacCreddie, Mrs. Knipe, Mrs. Batye, Mrs. Irving, Mrs. Henry McKee, Mrs. Dane, Mrs. Barnett Rogers, Mrs. R. McCullum.

There are many who are to take part in costumes representing characters in the comedies of Shakespeare. Among these will be dancers, swordsmen, St. George and his followers, and minstrels. Those who are taking part are as follows:

Dancers—minuet, Eleanor Bartlett, Isabel Killackey, William Higgins, Jr., Loring Higgins, Carlton Kimball, Mrs. F. G. Moore, Mrs. C. W. Scott, Marion Selden, Sarah Cushing, Gladys Ralph, Arline Maskell, L. Clark; morris dancers, J. Brewster, Donald Spencer, Wm. Dalton, choir boys; folk dancers, Harry Dalton, Henry Carse, Jack Hill, Morrill Watson, Sarah Hilton, Edith Taylor, May McKee, Mina Keery; swordsmen, Edwin T. Brewster, Mr. Peck, Mr. Bassett, Mr. Hammond, William Sellars, W. Spenser, E. L. Baker; teddy bears, Perley F. Gilbert, Miss Keeler, H. Winthrop Peirce; St. George, A. B. LeBoutillier; dragon, doctors, etc., Mary Peirce, J. Everett Collins, B. F. Michelsen, Carroll Watson, Douglas Crawford, Hugh Spencer, Stuart Henry, Gordon L. Colquhoun, Howard Cutler.

Prohibition Possibilities

Few men are better analysts of conditions that are associated with live public matters than Mr. Charles Wainwright of Lawrence. Hence what he writes of the possible results of the present Prohibition move in Massachusetts is of interest and worthy of consideration. In a recent Boston Advertiser, Mr. Wainwright says:

To the Editor of the Advertiser—

It is to be regretted that when the issues that divide the great political parties just now assume such importance, and when the best interests of the country demand a change of administration, a group of idealists should, by injecting a moral question better considered apart from governmental policies, endanger the success of the opposition. The prohibitory party is a party of protest merely. A phantom organization, its only practical effect being to compass the defeat if possible of that party which, as is acknowledged by its managers, contains the larger number favorable to its aims, there is not the slightest chance that it will ever elect its candidates to more than minor offices. In all the years it has been in existence it has not as a party advanced the cause of temperance, judging from the voting returns. Statistics will easily prove this.

At the last Presidential election its candidate polled little over 1 per cent of the total vote cast throughout the country. In eight prohibition States, where naturally the interest in the success of the party would be strongest, the total vote was 1,469,682, of which but 10,675 were cast for Chafin. Coming to Massachusetts, which more immediately concerns us at present, its vote for Governor for several years averaged about 2000. Last fall, through special effort and importation of noted speakers from abroad, it was increased to 5261, but the vote that year against license in the State was 221,732. In other words, nearly 98 per cent of the temperance voters ignored the claim of the prohibitory party to their allegiance.

Coming again to Lawrence, the headquarters of large liquor interests, in a total vote at the city election last fall of 10,438, license won by only 602, while the prohibition candidate for Governor received but 289 votes.

The reason for this feeling on the part of the voters is well stated by W. H. Anderson, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York: "The League method of fighting on a basis of strict non-partisanship and majority rule compels the liquor traffic to stand naked on its merits before the people." Mr. Shaw takes the opposite ground that the prohibition party stands not only for the one great economic, social, moral and political issue before our people today, the prohibition of the liquor traffic in State and nation, but we challenge comparison of our platform with that of any other political party in the history of our State," referring to biennial elections, a constitutional convention, and other planks also found in the platform of the other parties.

It would be more reasonable to organize an equal suffrage party, for that would have to deal with public policies of government. It would be equally reasonable to organize a party to combat divorce and the social evil which constitute today a menace to the home comparable in many respects to that of temperance.

It may be that in a close vote Mr. Shaw's personal influence as an untiring worker for the best interests of the community, his sincerity and high ideals, which are freely acknowledged, may result in securing a vote large enough to defeat the Republican party, the only party which stands in danger of losing votes through its activities, but the evil consequences not only in State but in national affairs will far more than offset any gain to the temperance movement.

This is not an insidious attempt on the part of the liquor interests to antagonize his campaign. They do not fear the prohibition party as they do the non-partisan movement throughout the country that is steadily gaining ground by creating a public sentiment that will fully sustain the temperance laws enacted by their representatives and combining in its strength the best elements of all parties alike.

The Opinion of a Neutral Woman on the Suffrage Question

Some women are neutral, still they do a lot of thinking, and they think that the gentleman who said "The reason why he thought women should not vote, was because some of them would get mad and stay mad at each other," has not travelled far or learned much from observation. Women may get mad, but how many men sell their votes for a few drinks of whiskey, and many of them will have nothing but unkind words for the members of their families for weeks. One man has said "Women have not as many brains as a man." We see mothers (real mothers) who give birth to these great and wise men; maybe they have one child, maybe many; we see them guiding these children for good, with the courage that only a mother has, and acting the part of cook, nurse, laundress, tailor, and dress-maker in one. We also see the father who can do only one kind of work and do it well. Then we wonder why the gentleman said "Men have more brains than women." The arguments the men put up are so weak that it will take time before they can even stand alone. If one asked these gentlemen why they used such frail arguments, methinks they might answer somewhat as the little boy did when his mother caught him stealing jam. In a very stern voice his mother said, "John, why did you take the jam?" With his finger in his mouth and his head lowered, John replied, "Cos I wanted ter."

But I said "some of the women are neutral," and maybe we have the same idea that the hard-worked farmer's wife had in the West.

A lady advocating for the suffrage cause called on Mrs. Farmer in the West and asked her if she thought the women should vote. "Wall," she said, as she passed wearily from the stove to sink, from sink to pantry, "I says, says I, if there is any one thing the men can do alone let them do it."
